We received notification of this event from the president of the Old Burial Yard of Thirty Mile Island in Haddam, CT. When we think of cemetery restoration, gravestones usually come first to mind. However, family plots and groupings are often surrounded by fencing of some sort, and they too are subject to weathering and wear. The folks who did this repair will be sharing their experience on Sunday, November 13th at 1:00pm at the Haddam Fire House, 439 Saybrook Road in Higganum.

Minutes of the Committee and First Commission for Detecting Conspiracies in the State of New York 1776-1778 (2 vol)

These two books are part of the New York Historical Society Collections series (for 1924 and 1925). The area west of Connecticut and north and east of New York City was a hotbed of Loyalists during the Revolution. These volumes present the depositions and testimony presented to the Committee, as well as the Committee's decisions as to the fate of the accused. Those that were determined to be Loyalists were usually jailed, and often sent to neighboring states for incarceration. Letters to the courts and/or jails in other states are also included.

Volume 2 also includes the Minutes of the Council of Appointment, which could be very helpful to those applying to the SAR or DAR with ancestors from New York City and the Westchester, Albany, and Ulster County areas, as military appointments are presented.

The index at the very back of Volume 2 is for the Council of Appointment section, so be careful to page back earlier in the book (p. 465) to find the index for Volume 1 and the first part of Volume 2.
